HISTORICAL SKETCH

At the Dalton Conference in 1883 at which Bishop Pierce presided, Captain A. M. Reinhardt made an appeal in behalf of the mountain boys and girls, promising a liberal financial support should a school be founded for their benefit. The conference very wisely undertook this work of Christian education, sending Prof. J. T. Linn, whose efforts live in numbers of useful men and women.

Thousands of consecrated men and women since have given of their money and prayers, and God has blessed this work. The ideal of the school has been and is, "He lives who serves." Sacrifice, service and devotion to duty have been nobly practiced in the history of the school and thus the institution has planted itself in the hearts of all Georgians. The past is secure. The good accomplished by the college is great. The fruits of this school will compare favorably with those of others in all lines of effort.

On November 28th, 1911, the entire plant was destroyed by fire. Thank God, friends rallied to the support of the institution and like magic one of the most beautiful school buildings in Georgia came from the neighboring forests, rock and sand. On the crest of a beautiful hill stands the MARY STUART WITHAM HALL, named in honor of the mother of W. S. Witham. Mr. Witham's untiring efforts for the GREATER REINHARDT will be cherished forever by those who love the school. With a desire to serve, the school faces the future, forgetting the past, it presses forward for the mark of the prize of the high calling of a man in Christ Jesus.

LOCATION

REINHARDT COLLEGE is located in the village of Waleska, Cherokee County, Georgia. Its nearest railroad station is Canton, Georgia, on the Blue Ridge Division of the L. & N. Railroad. An excellent highway connects the two points over which an automobile can easily travel in thirty minutes. Double daily mail and hack service and Bell telephone connect the college with Canton. Special arrangement for carriage and automoblie transporation can be made at any time. All freight and express shipments should be addressed in care of Rienhardt College, Canton, Georgia.

NATURAL SURROUNDINGS

The surroundings of the college are beautiful and healthful. The view from the outlook on the main building shows Pine Log Mountain at a distance of five miles and other mountains form the sky line in several directions from ten to forty miles away. The town is on a watershed and the natural drainage is perfect. The water supply is obtained from mountain springs and is furnished for drinking purposes at the buildings through flowing fountain. No public drinking cups are allowed.

GENERAL ADVANTAGES—HEALTH

The college site furnishes the best of physicial conditions, the pure air of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and water as good as nature affords.

MOUNTAINS.

The inspiration of the hills sinks quietly into the soul and lifts in it the loftiest ideals. The imagination dreams of the better things of life. As the sparkling brook sings of the joys of Nature so the soul feeds on Heaven's ideals and, sparkling with gladness, it becomes strong and able to carry the real issues of life.

NATURE

The mind drinks from pure fountains, songs of birds, rippling rills, and running brooks. Away from the mad roar of commercial greed, vile incentives, and base habits, it catches a picture of Deity in leaf and flower.

SCHOLARSHIP

Every member of the faculty is a devout student of the Man of Galilee. The motto is for each to be so strong that devils will fear and tremble, so wise as to give most thorough work, so loving as to inspire the greatest confidence. Look for our graduates in higher colleges and universities. You will find the Reinhardt boy and girl ably holding in head and heart the highest esteem of teachers and students.

Forty eight graduates and former graduates are making excellent records at Vanderbilt, Emory and Henry, University of Georgia, Mercer, Baptist Seminary of Louisville, and various professional and business schools.

GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS

The college grounds consist of one hundred and twenty-five acres, thirty five acres of which make up the campus surrounding the various buildings. A few acres have been cleared for producing college supplies and the remainder is occupied with standing timber. The buildings are surrounded with large oaks and other shade trees giving the place an unusual natural beauty.

MARY STUART WITHAM HALL is a building of modern construction, 66x116 feet, divided into eleven large lecture and recitation rooms, office, library, and music room. The entire upper floor is thrown into an immense auditorium with a seating capacity of fifteen hundred persons, and a stage provided with complete equipment for amateur plays. This room is used as a college chapel, the church of the community, and for all assemblies for religious and other purposes. The lecture and recitation rooms are equipped with the latest models of pressed steel sanitary seating. The light ratio of the entire building is one square foot of window area to five square feet of floor space. Fresh warm air from a furnace is delivered under pressure to the various rooms insuring a complete change of the atmosphere every thirty minutes.

JOHN W. HEIDT HALL was erected by the WOMAN'S HOME MISSION SOCIETY, supplemented with funds from Atlanta Methodists. It will accommodate forty young ladies and is equipped with bath rooms and modern sanitary arrangements.

HARRIET HAWKES HALL is the gift of Mr. A. K. Hawkes, of Atlanta. It supplies comfortable rooms for fifty young men and a complete water and sewerage system is being installed.

CHEROKEE HALL gets its name from the county that supplied the funds for its erection. It has large rooms and study halls in which twenty young men can be easily accommodated.

All these buildings are furnished with tables, bedsteads springs and mattresses, the students being required to furnish all other necessary articles.

LAUNDRY

The college has no arrangements for doing washing and laundry for students. Many of the young women do their own work, but as yet no equipment can be furnished for this purpose.

DISCIPLINE

The spirit of the association in the dormitories is as home-like as college life can be made. Each building is in charge of a member of the faculty, but self discipline is practiced as far as possible. Students are responsible for the care of their rooms and adjacent hall-ways. Regular hours are observed for study, meals and recreation.

DINING HALL

All students living in the dormitories and a number rooming in other places, together with some of the members of the faculty, take their meals in the Central Dining Hall in connection with Heidt Hall. This arrangement has proven to be one of the most pleasing features of the social life of the college. The kitchen is unusually well equipped and special attention is given to supplying the diet that is most conducive to the physicial and mental efficiency of college life. The best of health prevails as the result of this policy. The college produces its own supplies as far as possible and both Northern and Southern markets are patronized to obtain the best that the rate of charges will permit.

Parents are urged not to send boxes of delicacies to students or to allow them to purchase the same as much illness and loss of time from class work has resulted from these practices. Any special attention to the diet of individuals is given when needed but this is found soon to be unnecessary when the proper rules of health are observed.

RELIGIOUS INFLUENCES

The founders of Reinhardt College were anxious to give the youth of the mountain section the best educational advantages, but they did not consider that they had done this until they had made the knowledge of Christ the goal. The spirit of the fathers is still the spirit of the sons. "Thatwe may present every man perfect in Christ" is inscribed on the cornerstone of the main building and in the hearts of the faculty and trustees.

Revival Services

Revival services are held twice each year. There is no desire to proselyte—only that all may know Christ. A splendid revival this spring resulted in possibly more than one hundred conversions and reclamations. About one hundred have offered themselves for any kind of service to which God may see fit to call them.

Church Services

Students are required to attend preaching every Sunday morning and the devotional exercises held every morning in the college chapel. We strive to have a model Sunday School and all are required to attend. This is the great work of the church. We try to prepare our students to be efficient Sunday School workers when they leave the institution. There are teacher training classes and each year diplomas are awarded to those who have completed the course of study.

Christian Workers' Class

This class is composed of those young men who feel called to preach and others who are anxious to fit themselves to be workmen "that need not be ashamed" in the Church of God. Every year there are some in the class who accept the call to preach and all have an enlarged vision of Christian service. Books are studied that develop the inner life and bring forcibly to the mind and heart of the student the needs of the Master's Kingdom.

Missionary Societies

The religious activities of the young women of the college and community are carried on under the direction of the Women's Missionary Society of the North Georgia Conference. To adapt the work to the different ages and needs of both Junior and Senior, two classes have been arranged. Little more than organization has been effected during the past year but all plans are completed for some excellent work during the coming session.

Sunrise Prayer Meeting

On Sundays a Sun Rise Prayer Meeting is held in the chapel. This is a mighty power for good for those who attend and no doubt causes a strong uplifting influence throughout the student body.

Special Religious Advantages.

All during the scholastic year we are visited by leading men in the church who bring great messages to the student body, giving a vision of the larger life and calling for volunteers to Christian service. Illustrated lectures on religious subjects are given throughout the year. All of these are of inestimable value in Christian education.

18. These laws apply to students in all departments of Reinhardt College and students will be answerable to them during visits away from the institution so long as they are enrolled.

LIBRARY.

Charles F. Fawcett, Librarian.

The college has a small but well arranged library which is open to the students at certain hours of the day. None but helpful books are allowed on the shelves and the students make constant use of them for reference and collateral reading. Special attention is given to current literature, the college being a subscriber to most of the standard periodicals.

STUDENT'S ORGANIZATIONS.

Literary Societies.

There are four excellent and active literary societies connected with the college, the HAYGOOD and the PIERCE for young men and the PHI ALPHA and the PHI DELTA for young women. These societies give an invaluable training in parliamentary practice and public speaking. The mock trial and inter-society debates are among the great social events of the college year, and students who go from this school win high places in the corresponding work of higher institutions. The work of these societies has the assistance and oversight of the faculty and they are regarded as most valuable aids to the educational and social aims of the college.

Inter-Collegiate Prohibition League.

During the past year a local chapter of the Inter-collegiate Prohibition League was organized and an enthusiastic cooperation has been secured among the students. A regular class using a text book is conducted by a member of the faculty. A representative of the college was sent to the State contest and the college intends hereafter to be actively identified with the work of this organization.

Athletic Association.

A very enthusiastic Association of members of the battalion and of the faculty has the athletics of the college in charge. Only those who are regular in their academic and military enrollment are allowed to belong as the organization has committed itself to the policy of excluding those who do not maintain the required standards in class and cadet duty from participating in any kind of games.

REINHARDT MOUNTAINEER.

This is a magazine devoted to the development of literary efforts among the students. It is published monthly and is in charge of a staff, the members of which are elected from the literary societies and the Reinhardt Battalion.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.

The work of this department has proven to be one of the most pleasing and helpful phases of the work of the school. Music enters as an essential part into all the religious and recreational exercises of the college and no one need leave the institution without a knowledge and appreciation of this most cosmopolitan of the arts. In church and chapel the best of songs and hymns are used and special attention is given to the correct singing of the old and standard compositions. The teaching in all lines is of high order and music students will find this an ideal spot to acquire proficiency in any of the following branches of study.

VOICE.

Training in both the speaking and singing voice is offered to those who wish it. Special attention will be given to the physical culture that should accompany such study and such exercises will be given as will improve the general carriage and health. The works of Kleiser and Root will be the basis of instruction.

PIANO.

The work of the college in giving instruction on this instrument has been most successful. The instruction is entirely personal and individual, the studies being in every case adapted to the age and the needs of the pupil. A thorough command of the fundamentals is insisted upon and sufficient theoretical work is required to make the practice intelligent at every step. Sufficient pianos are provided for practice and the annual recitals and various public events give the students ample experience in performing in the presence of an audience.

BAND AND ORCHESTRA.

The department has been partially successful in its efforts to maintain a college orchestra and during the coming years expects to succeed even better in starting a band. This will be used in connection with the military work and will be under the discipline of that department. Already a number of players are assured and prospective students who play or are learning to play either band or orchestra instruments will find a congenial association in these organizations.

VIOLIN.

Violin playing is taught as one would learn to command the living voice rather than as a dead technical grind. Songs and familiar pieces are acquired from the first, although a ground work is laid for advanced playing with the studies of Hohman and Sevcek.

CHORUS PRACTICE.

All the students who wish to sing are organized into a chorus choir for rendering special music at religious services. These persons will receive systematic instruction in sight singing without charge. Selections of the best class of secular music will be taken up in addition to the anthems used in public worship.

UNIFORMS.

All students who are members of the battalion or of the college classes are required to wear uniforms on all ocasions that the facutly directs. Parents should not regard these uniforms as an expense but rather as an economy. They are furnished to the students at actual cost and material will be secured that will wear better than ordinary clothing purchased at the same price. In addition to this the uniform promotes simplicity and good taste in dress and expresses the democracy the institution wishes to encourage.

For the cadets this consists of coat and trousers of Confederate gray and navy blue cap. A service uniform of khaki, leggins and campaign hat is also required. The uniform for the young ladies for winter wear will consist of a dark blue coat suit and plain white waist of pique, and for fall and spring a plain white linen skirt with white lawn waist. These requirements except for very unusual reasons will be rigidly enforced. There must be no substitution of other articles or any attempt at evasion of these regulations. Measurements are taken immediately on the opening of school and students should come prepared to pay for the uniforms at that time.

LOAN FUNDS.

W. S. Witham's Ten Thousand Dollar Loan Fund For Girls.

"As one lamp lights another nor grows less, so nobleness en-kindleth nobleness." A band of girls are daily under the help of this fund, catching inspiration of the broader life. One deaconess, two Reinhardt teachers, numbers of teachers at other places, home missionaries, Sunday school workers, and home makers have been recipients of this fund. Every girl living near Waleska who has health, brains and energy has in this fund an open door of hope.

One winter on hearing of this fund in the school a mountain girl packed her trunk and with her sister drove forty miles, reaching Waleska on a cold day with only twenty-five cents. She stood at the head of her class and is still in the town making a splendid record. This fund has been in operation for several years and has helped many girls toward getting an education.

HEMPHILL FUND.

In its efforts to pant God's kingdom this institution has found no nobler souls or truer friends than the Hemphills. W. A. Hemphill invested $1,500, and the interest for twelve years of this fund has been loaned to girls. The fund has doubled and forty-two girls have been directly benefited, and hundreds are indirectly influenced by its proceeds as these go out with a purpose to work out their own salvation with fear and trembling.

'Great men are those who see that thoughts rule the world."

"All the beautiful sentiments in the world weigh less than a single lovely action."

FIELD FUND

Through the use of this fund boys have gone forth from this institution better equipped for life. They are found in all professions. Mr. Earl E. Field has reason to be proud of the good it has done. This fund has been invested in boys and each year it is collected and reloaned. The principal and interest are in men, not in lands.

FLEMING FUND.

This fund is unavailable as yet, but by the Grace of God Brother John D. Fleming, assisted by the school, will put this money into circulation on an enlarged scale.

Anyone desiring to be benefited by any of these funds should write to the president for information.

ATHLETICS.

Every effort is made at Reinhardt to encourage all forms of athletics that are conducive to the welfare of the student body and the institution. This applies equally to the young ladies and the young men. The aim is to get all to take recreation of some kind. No encouragement is given to that professional spirit which so often hardens the individual and destroys the democracy of college games, but rather the ideal is that of the well-balanced discipline which is the sine qua non of moral, mental and moral living. Nothing in our college life has developed those social qualities of cooperation and fair pay so seriously needed in the world at large as have our few simple sports.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

It is the earnest desire of Reinhardt College to meet the demands of the times that young people should have the opportunity to learn something of the practical things of life through Industrial Education. As yet no funds are available for any extended work in this line. During the past year a very successful class in cooking has been conducted out of school hours. This work is to be continued and extended as much as possible during the coming session. Hereafter the science courses will be planned with the principles of Agriculture and Domestic Science as their central theme.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

All male students strong enough to carry a rifle are required to become members of the corps of cadets. Men have always recognized the physicial value of military training but there is a greater worth than that which comes to the body. It gives self-control, rapidity and accuracy of thinking, and power of decision to the mind. These, with Christian training give the perfect man as their product. This is what you want for your boys. Search and when you have considered all things you will find no place offering to your children advantages superior to those found at Reinhardt College.
